AMAZING DETAILS OF 'MURDER PLOT' IS BARED BY NEGRO

WARD MEETINGS TO CENTER POLITICAL STAGE IN ALBANY

Candidates Will Take Their Platforms To Voting Strength

VOTE LIKELY TO BE LARGER

Indicated That Near 1,300 Votes Will Be Polled Here

Ward meetings will be held in the city of Albany within the next few days, in the campaign for the mayoralty election.

Beginning what looks like the prelude of an intensive city political campaign, B. L. Malone, candidate for mayor, talked to a number of his friends gathered in building on Holly street, formerly occupied by the Malone Machine shops. Mr. Malone outlined the more outstanding features of his platform in an enthusiastically, yet conservative manner.

Some 200 Malone backers were gathered at the meeting which was held at 7:30 o'clock.

It is probable that the mayor's race will center political activities, most of the aldermen preferring to make their campaign quietly and without making active campaigns.

The race in Albany for President of the city council promises to be of unusual interest with H. J. Priest, undertaker, being herded as the winner by his friends and M. R. Rankin, young business man and civic leader, having an equally confident following.

With the end of the campaign a little more than ten days away it is expected that both Mr. Malone and Dr. F. L. Carswell, incumbent, will bend all energies toward gathering their full strength for the battle of the ballots on September 20.

Votes Estimated
It is estimated in political circles that the city of Albany will poll in the neighborhood of 1,300 votes this year, a heavier vote than usual is expected. Indications are that women voters are taking greater interest than heretofore.

Two years ago the vote in the city of Albany stood: Carswell 77, Patterson 383, Britain 322, making a total of 1,202 votes cast that election. An increase in the number of voters is expected, as more people have been here long enough to qualify, while many more women voters have declared their intentions of going to the polls.

Platforms of the candidates for mayor are being circulated freely by their friends and it is thought at both lineups will perfect organizations to carry the fight through the next ten day period.

Clifton To Go To Jackson Soon

J. W. Clifton, an outstanding figure in the Southern Ice Cream association and secretary of that body, is expected in Jackson, Miss., on to aid in making arrangements for the Southern convention. It is expected that from a number of five hundred manufacturers of the South will attend the Jackson meeting.

CHESTER L. SARTOR IS HURT IN WRECK

Local Man Is Taken To Hospital In Selma, Ala.

Chester L. Sartor is expected to recover after sustaining serious injuries in an automobile accident which occurred on the Montgomery highway at an early hour today. Mr. Sartor was taken to a Selma, Ala., hospital. Relatives of the injured man left today to be at his bedside.

Times-Journal today sent the following:

"C. L. Sartor traveling salesman for the Southern Cotton Oil Company and a resident of Albany-Deatur was seriously injured on the Montgomery highway near here early this morning when his auto left the road and crashed into a tree. Persons residing near by heard the crash and an ambulance was summoned immediately. Mr. Sartor was brought to the Vaughn Memorial hospital here where it was announced that his injuries consist of a fractured rib, a dislocated hip and several cuts about the face and body. He is expected to recover."

From reports of the accident which occurred about four o'clock it is presumed that Mr. Sartor dozed at the wheel long enough for the auto to head off the road.

ALBANY SCHOOLS

OPEN ON SEPT. 20

Prospects Bright For Successful Year In Local System

With faculty places being filled, preparations are virtually complete for the opening of the Albany schools on September 20. Prospects are bright for a most successful year, under the leadership of Prof. Greenhill, superintendent.

The date of the opening this year was delayed somewhat in the hope that all of the improvements now being made on the several ward buildings can be finished before the beginning of the fall term. An unusually heavy enrollment is expected this year, but the facilities of the school system for taking care of the students have never been better.

Enrollment Is Not Yet Known

The total enrollment for the Decatur schools has not yet been tabulated, but probably will be announced Thursday, it was stated today by W. W. Benson, superintendent of the Decatur schools.

Applause Rocks Hall As France Votes For Admission

WAR BURIED BY EUROPE

France First To Give Welcome To Her Late Enemy

GENEVA, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Europe buried the great war today when, amid applause, which shook the hall of the league of nations assembly, Germany was unanimously elected a member of the league and unanimously also accorded a permanent seat on the league council.

When the roll call of states was taken, Foreign Minister Briand, of France, pronounced a sonorous "yes" and turned his eyes toward the press gallery as if he wanted the word to go forth throughout the world that France was first and foremost to welcome her ancient enemy into the fold of conciliation and harmony.

Foreign Minister Vandervelde, of Belgium, with equal enthusiasm proclaimed approval of Germany's admission, while Sir Austen Chamberlain's contribution to unanimity on behalf of Great Britain was crisp, clear and easily heard throughout the crowded auditorium.

Mrs. J. N. Sheats Dies At Hospital

Mrs. J. N. Sheats, of Trinity, route one, died this morning at 3:20 o'clock at Baugh's hospital, at the age of 56 years. She is survived by her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Lula Napps and Miss Irene Sheats; seven sons, G. C. B. E., B. R., J. P., C. B. and Hollis Sheats, of Albany; T. M. Sheats of Berea, Ky.; one brother, C. P. Watterson, of Albany; three sisters, Mrs. J. A. Meadows of Albany, Mrs. Laura Henderson of Moulton; Mrs. F. L. Aldridge of Haleyville.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. from the residence, three miles west of Trinity. Interment will be made in Sheats and Hames cemetery, Priest directing.

Mrs. Sheats had numerous friends throughout this section to whom news of her death was a pronounced shock.

COTTON CONDITION SHOWS LOSSES ON SEPTEMBER COUNT

15,166,000 Bale Crop Predicted By The Census Bureau

GINNINGS OFF TO SEPTEMBER 1

Alabama's Crop Far Behind Progress Last Season

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A cotton crop of 15,166,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is indicated by the September 1 condition, which was 59.6 per cent of a normal, the department of agriculture announced today.

If developments during the remainder of the season are as unfavorable to the crop as in the three years of greatest decline in the last ten, a total production of about 14,104,000 bales might be expected, the crop reporting board announced, but should conditions be as favorable as during the three years of greatest subsequent improvement, an outturn of about 16,379,000 bales might result.

The preliminary estimates of abandonment of acreage for the season, on the basis of September 1 reports was placed at 1,691,000 acres, or 3.5 per cent of the 48,898,000 acres in cultivation on June 27, leaving for harvest this season 47,207,000 acres.

The September 1 condition indicates a yield of 153.6 pounds per acre, as compared with 154.6 pounds a fortnight ago and 167.2 pounds the final yield last year.

The total production of 15,248,000 bales was indicated a fortnight ago on the August 16 condition, which was 63.5 per cent of a normal. Last year's crop totaled 16,103,679 bales and the September 1 condition was 56.2.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Cotton of this year's growth, gained prior to September 1, amounted to 694,877 running bales, counting round as half bales, compared with 1,883,399 bales to that date.

SEVENTY-YEAR-OLD CHURCH IS REMOVED TO CONVENIENT SPOT

After seventy years of service as a religious temple the Center Springs Methodist church is no more, rather will it live again on the McCarty place near Winton school.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Whitton are declared to have deeded two acres of land to the church, including the McCarty cemetery which will be used as a cemetery for the burial of others.

The old church stood as a landmark in the Somerville district and was noted for camp meetings, people often traveling long distances to attend.

The original building was built of logs, hewn by the hands of the pioneers who settled that then dangerous and wild country. These same hands built the edifice, believing that a temple in the wilderness could serve to good purpose for the people of the surrounding section. Many such buildings were built in various sections of this county, bringing God to the hardened traveler of the wilderness, though services were not frequent, being held only when the circuit rider made his occasional visit.

Another building was placed on the site of the old log hut and has been torn down. The new building is nearly complete and the new church will be opened with a zealous service, intended to bring hundreds of people through-out that section into the dedication ceremonies of the church of the latter day type.

It is understood that the new church will be called the Center Springs church.

HISTORY IS TOLD IN FIREWORKS

American Nation To Live Again In The Coming Fair

To commemorate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, a special fireworks program, of historical and patriotic numbers will feature the night programs at the North Alabama Fair the week of September 20th.

Each night's program will be different, beginning Monday night with Columbus' Discovery of America, a Round World, Golden Riches, the Landing of the Pilgrims, Wm. Penn's Pipe of Peace, and many other gorgeous displays.

Tuesday night's display will be in honor of the heroes who fought and won independence in the Revolutionary War, Ben Franklin's discovery of electricity, Martha Washington's Roses, Betsy Ross' Flag, and the Battle of Bunker Hill. Wednesday night the "Winning of the West" will be depicted in pyrotechnic displays.

The program Thursday night of the Fair will feature the great battles of the Civil War, and will also depict in scenes of fire the reconstruction period immediately thereafter. Friday night the Sinking of the Maine, the Battle of Santa Aigo, Dewey at Manila, the San Francisco Earthquake, Roosevelt in Africa and many other later occurrences will be re-enacted in gorgeous flames. The closing night of the Fair will be shown the Battle of Verdun, Belleau woods, the Armistice, the Tree of Liberty, Fountain of Gold, Niagara Falls, Cotton Blossoms and the Swastika, closing with a great shower of silver and gold fireworks.

Altogether the fireworks displays shown at the Fair will be fully equal to those shown at larger events.

Aside from their pyrotechnic beauty the Fair management believes that the historic and patriotic features of the programs will be worth a great deal to those who see them.

Malone To Speak In First Ward

B. L. Malone, candidate for mayor of Albany, will address the voters of the first ward (West Albany) at the schoolhouse there on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced today. This will usher in a speaking program which Mr. Malone plans to carry into all parts of the city.

COUNTY STANDS TO LOSE 5,000 BALES, SAYS FARM AGENT

Immediate Action Is Asked For In An Appeal Today

LOCAL FIRMS HAVE POISON

Second Coming of the Pest Finds Farmers Ready to Fight

"Morgan County stands to lose five thousand bales of cotton this week unless prompt action is taken."

That was the word passed along the line today by J. C. Ford, county farm agent, as he spoke of the second attack of cotton worms in this section. The worm arrived just two days after September 5, the date predicted by the farm agent for the second coming of the worm.

"The second crop of army worms is now hatching by the millions. Indications are that all fields not poisoned promptly will be stripped of leaves this week," said the farm agent in his stirring message to the farmers pleading for immediate action against the pests.

"Some cotton will not be seriously injured except for the lowering of grades, but most of it will suffer heavy loss. I have seen some fields where the hopper and rainy weather has knocked off most of the early squares, now has a good crop of young fruit, all of which will be destroyed if the worms are not poisoned," declared Mr. Ford in an interview given to the Daily.

"With a fair stand, one boll per stalk will mean about 100 pounds of seed cotton per acre. Any bloom formed by September 10 has a good chance to make white cotton. If the worm struck the whole cotton belt it would not be so serious, but with the Carolinas unaffected and all the southern part of the belt too well matured for serious injury, we positively cannot afford to neglect poisoning," concluded the farm agent in his plea for immediate action by the agriculturists of the Morgan section.

Good Progress On New Warehouses

Good progress is being made in construction of the three new cotton warehouses being erected here by Davis and Company, Hughes and Tidwell and The Decatur Company. All are expected to be ready for use by the time the cotton season gets fully underway.

"PARADISE" IS NAME OF NEW SERIAL

What happens when a modern lover is imbued with the spirit of his swashbuckling ancestors? Can a ne'er-do-well find "Paradise?"

This delightful story is written by Cosmo Hamilton, author of "Scandal" and the "Blindness of Virtue," and will appear serially in the Daily beginning on Thursday, tomorrow.

"Paradise" is the story of Anthony Fortescue—judged by moderns as a profligate—but in reality a man born out of his time, heir to the wild lawless natures of his cavalier ancestors.

And the story of Chrissie of the music halls who understands and believes in him—his wife and his balance wheel.

Read of their struggles and success in gaining "Paradise" starting tomorrow in the Daily, exclusively.

FEAR OF BACHELOR CAUSED ACT, CLAIM OF NEGRO SLAYER

Several Trips Made To Smith Home Before Killing

HAYS LEONARD ON THE STAND

Negro Says Pistol In Hands of White Man Frightened Him

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 8.—(AP)—A stuttering negro farm hand today related in stammering tongue the story of the plot to slay Judge Lamar C. Smith, son-in-law of the murdered man.

Hays Leonard was the witness. Wild-eyed, with haunted expression, the man appeared as if he knew little concerning what it meant to take an oath. He seemed stunned by the cataclysm that had engulfed him. His story had been told repeatedly to officers.

Questioning by state's counsel brought out that Leonard had been approached by Bachelor months before the assassination of Judge Smith. He claimed he was made a part of the plot by fear of the white man.

He told the intimate details of the plotting that led to the tragic night when he pulled the trigger of a shot gun that ended the life of Bachelor's father-in-law.

"It was along in March," Leonard haltingly told the judge, "that Mr. Bachelor came to my house and spoke to me. He said: 'Hays, I've got something for you to know.' He said he wanted me to 'kill somebody,' he said it was Judge Smith. I said: 'Mr. Bachelor don't you know you will be doing wrong?' Then he said to me: 'Yes, but this must be done if I have to do it myself.'"

Things "rocked along for a night or so," the witness continued. "Then Mr. Bachelor came to me one evening. He took me down to the judge's house. He told me how the door could be opened. Then he took me back home."

Defense counsel objected to this incident being related and the objection was sustained.

Leonard then told of another visit to Judge Smith's home previous to the murder.

"He took me there with a stick," said Leonard, describing this visit. Bachelor waited under a pecan tree. Leonard said he went to the front door and knocked. Mrs. Smith answered and inquired: "who is there?" Leonard said he answered: "A boy with a note from Miss Elizabeth" (Mrs. Bachelor).

She asked for the note. Leonard said, twisting in his seat, "Did you try to strike her?" asked state's counsel.

"No sir."

Leonard said his heart failed him. He told her he had lost the note, returned to Bachelor and they both went home without accomplishing their purpose on that occasion.

Later Bachelor approached the negro again and the plot was re-hatched, Leonard said.

Leonard said Bachelor told him of killing Judge Smith's dogs. Then he told of going to the Smith home on another occasion, alone with the intent of carrying out Bachelor's plot. He said he drove around the Smith home in his car and returned, telling Bachelor the Smith's "had company."

On another occasion, Leonard told of a plan whereby he was to have killed Judge and Mrs. Smith while Bachelor and his wife were guests in the Smith home. The negro, in simple words, said: "He told me he was spending the night there and that he and his wife would be in the front room. He said the Smiths would be next to the kitchen. He told me: 'I'm going to be laying up there just like I was asleep and waiting for you to come in later in the night.' He told me he was going to be."

MOSCOW.—Novel are the notions of Soviet newspaper writers about America. Nothing is too fantastic for their credulity if it touches upon the land of unlimited possibilities. Recently having announced that Americans were planning to divert the Gulf Stream and freeze out Europe, Soviet journalists have now discovered that a serious plan is afoot in the United States to create a "seric bank" there and with its help accumulate all the gold in the world.

According to an inspired editorial in "Gudok," the organ of the Soviet railroad men, "The Americans have proposed the creation of a world bank which will have the right to issue bank notes. Naturally the whereabouts of the bank must be somewhere in America, as she has more than half of the world's gold reserve."

"And just as naturally, the majority of the votes in the bank's governing board must belong to Americans. This American plan has not yet been accepted by the League of Nations."

"But if America should refrain in the future from giving new loans to Europe, the League of Nations might have to change its attitude. The United States already has the support of England. Germany is completely in American hands. France comes next and it is unreasonable to suppose that France can muster any effective opposition to common Anglo-American pressure."

"Of course this world bank would not bring cessation of wars. On the contrary, should it seem profitable for America, she will allow the other powers to fight among themselves, and indeed we would not be surprised if the next war against the Soviet Union were to be waged at the instigation of the United States of America."

The House of Scientists in Odessa, a co-operative institution for the benefit of professors and others engaged in scientific work, which has been receiving a monthly subsidy of $400 from the American Section of Aid to Scholars, now announces that it is able to get along without the American money. Improved conditions have made it possible to dispense with foreign aid, the Odessian scientists explained.

Outdoor sports are making great headway with the new generation of Soviet Russians. Lola Shumarkiko, 19-year-old "Cosmopolite," or member of the Communist Youth International, is being heralded as the greatest living exponent in Russia of the motto that Soviet girls must paddle their own canoes. Lola just completed a 600 mile trip in a canoe by herself.

She left her home city, Kiev, in the Ukraine, hunched out on the broad and sluggish Dnieper, and paddling at an average rate of 15 miles a day, covered the distance to Sebastopol, in the Crimea, in a month and a half.

Sixteen American engineers and mechanical experts employed by the Georgian Manufacturing Company, the Herriman concern now exploiting the mines of Tchikuri, have arrived bringing with them their own houses. The housing shortage is not confined to Moscow, and having learned from their associates of the extreme difficulty of finding rooms, the Americans packed up and brought along ten folding cottages.

STORY OF SANDY BARES VERY SOUL OF MODERN GIRL

Fox Films Version of Elenore Meherin Tale Fairly Takes One's Breath at Princess Thur. Fri.

A face like an angel—a heart of fire—and a laugh ringing with joy!

This is "Sandy," Fox Films version of Elenore Meherin's gripping serial printed in every city of prominence in the United States. Madge Bellamy has the title role in the Fox production directed by Harry Beaumont, at the Princess theater Thursday and Friday.

There is a climax to tighten your breath—to keep you on edge with restless eagerness—for it is a climax which bares the soul of a woman. It shows the hidden and aching thoughts of a fair American girl who is put to the severest test.

When you see Sandy McNeil stripped of her bonny defiance, when you see those shadowed eyes truck with terror—the delicate mouth tense with agony—you will feel her fears and experience her own compelling problems.

The "Sandy" that Miss Bellamy brings to the screen is a revelation to the theater-goers. This modern American girl, married to a man she does not love and then finding refuge with the man she thinks she loves, is one of the most dramatic studies ever unfolded through the medium of studio continuity.

She is a mere child when her exacting parents decide that she shall marry for wealth—but she is old in knowledge before the bitter end of this untimely experience. Why should "Sandy" suffer this ignominy? Why was she set apart from other girls? Others lived, and loved and seemed to reap happiness—but "Sandy" knew naught but sorrow. Why?

Answering these age-old questions in pantomime, Miss Bellamy depicts a human character of rare accomplishments. She invests "Sandy" with a human touch difficult to define. One must see "Sandy" to understand the deep-lying pathos of it all.

ate last year, the census bureau announced today.

Round bales included numbered 14,607 compared with 23,349 last year.

Ginning prior to September 1, by states follows: Alabama 22,838, Arizona 5,316, Arkansas 2,950, California 22,204, Florida 3,682, Georgia 108,617, Louisiana 21,162, Mississippi 18,446, North Carolina and Oklahoma 183,000, South Carolina 20,764, Texas 488,395.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8.—(AP)

—The government report, issued at ten o'clock, giving an indicated crop of 15,166,000 bales on a condition average of 59.6, was somewhat larger than expected. As a result prices declined 45 to 57 points when trading was resumed, from the high point prevailing before the report was issued.

October traded down to 17.55, December to 17.73; January also to 17.73.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)

While the government report today on the estimated production of cotton was considerably larger than expected, the New York cotton market was little affected. Prices dropped from the high levels of the day but subsequently recovered half the loss.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)

—The summary of conditions in Southern states for the week ended yesterday says that in general cotton made good progress in most of the more eastern sections of the belt, poor to fair in most central districts and poor generally in the west.

Temperatures generally were above normal and rainfall was mostly moderate, although there were general to excessive rains in a few sections. Rains in Kentucky seriously delayed tobacco cutting and were unfavorable to this crop in Tennessee and Maryland.

Sugar cane is recovering from the effects of the storm in Louisiana with slight damage, the summary says.

Conditions in Alabama: Corn, sweet potatoes and minor crops mostly good progress and condition mostly only fair; picking and ginning progressing slowly.

"It is a grand and glorious feeling to know that there is one medicine that you can depend on when you get sick and know that it will fix you up in a very short time. It won't make you sick while you are taking it. It does not have any bad after effects and it certainly makes you feel like a different person after taking a few doses. The medicine is Herb Juice. I speak from experience and everybody who has taken it will agree with me."

Mr. J. S. Faucett of 836 Decatur Avenue, Birmingham, Ala., made the above statement to the Herb Juice man a few days ago. Never a day passes that some one does not come in to see the demonstrator and speak a good word for Herb Juice. Every one who takes it is a booster. Mr. Faucett continued his remarks:

"I was dreadfully constipated and felt dull and tired out all the time. Constipation can do more to wreck a person's general condition than any other one trouble or disorder. I soon got so that I could not eat without suffering from indigestion. It was to be expected. Any one who was clogged up as I was could not be expected to digest food. I felt so bad I could not sleep or rest at night, and lost eight pounds in weight and much strength. Through the papers I learned of Herb Juice. It seemed to have helped so many people that I saw no reason why it should not help me also. I bought a bottle and that was my first step towards recovery. I have had a thorough cleaning and consequently feel better and have been relieved of constipation. I have also given your wonderful Herb Juice to my family as a laxative and purifier, with the very best results. Herb Juice is a laxative that is most effective but it is not unpleasant to take has no bad after effects and builds up the whole system. It is a splendid tonic as well as a laxative. I am in a good physical condition and intend to stay that way—with the help of Herb Juice. I cannot recommend it too highly."

FASHION NOTES

BY ALICE LANGEIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS.—Sea breezes have brought out some delightful sailor-girl costumes to be worn these summer months at the seaside.

The sea and the sailor inspired them, for they have the colors of the one and the style of the other, with much Parisian elegance added, of course. Dark blue ratine makes a charming sleeveless vest to be worn over a white kasha frock with wide collar. It is bordered with white braid and there is a red lacing in front. A blue pleated skirt bordered with white has a charming blouse with white star in the center as the only decoration.

Lucien Lelong uses a lovely little blue coat cut very much in the style of the naval officer, lapped in front and buttoned with fine brass buttons. Under it is worn a sailor costume in blue with the whole topped off with a red beret.

Nothing is lovelier than a white sailor costume at the seaside. This year they are to be seen in flannel, kasha, serge and drapella. A straight coat is worn over a plain sailor suit with small belt and wide collar.

Sailor jumpers in white or blue are to be seen at all the smart resorts. No sleeves and a chic tie, sometimes pale rose with a belt to match in soft doe-skin are the usual accompaniment.

SELMA, Ala., Sept. 8.—(AP)—The work of dredging is going forward with much progress in Pensacola harbor, the dredge "Benyard," which was compelled to go into dry dock two weeks ago being active again and is engaged in dredging the entrance to the channel at Pensacola harbor, the federal engineer's office reports.

Dyes are also being built along the Alabama river below Selma.

May Colonel Graves remember and his highway commission remember that there is a road between these cities and Guntersville, whether it looks like a road, or not, and that that road needs paving.

Alabama's chances for expansion are wrapped in the minds of the people claiming citizenship rights. It is the sacred duty of the individual to see that the best comes to his state and his community.

One industry seeking this location and settling here can mean but that others will follow. Help them get located by talking good conditions and good times.

The way to a man's heart is through his stomach. The candy trust evidently think young ladies are alike in their habits, judging from the attractive advertisements designed to meet the eye of the young man who has a "date" that night.

FORD WARNS AGAIN AGAINST THE COTTON PESTS.

County Agent J. C. Ford has certainly done his part in bounding the cotton worm this year. He has expended energy from one end of this county to the other, he has worked manfully in co-operating with the farmer in instructing him how best to battle the pest, he has given advice, made long trips, attended meetings, watched the supply and demand for poison and withal he has enjoyed the fight, for he has been in a constructive fight. People usually are pleased in constructive fights, they are sometimes hard fought but the law of averages tends to show that such fights are usually won.

Mr. Ford today warns again against the inroads of the pest. Three years ago he did a similar service for his country, but the farmers did not know Ford then for the agricultural authority he is recognized now as being, they hesitated and they lost. Today they are fighting, fighting with all the weapons at their hands, they are fighting to bring Morgan county to the top of the list in the growth of cotton, realizing that their "money" crop may be seriously hampered, perhaps lost if preventative measures are not taken at once.

The county farm agent no longer has to issue more than one warning. That is the blessing of organized farming, the blessing of recognizing excellent qualities in a man who is trying to fill his position and serve his people. The Daily has offered the use of its news columns to Mr. Ford, hoping that he will call upon this organ which goes into the homes of the majority in this county, hoping that any service which might be performed in a newspaper will be set forth by the farm agent at anytime he may want that service done.

The farmers are listening to Mr. Ford, already they are battling this second crop of worms with the same intense campaign which characterized the first fight several weeks ago. The farmers won that fight, with the help of Mr. Ford and the help of agencies in and about these cities that went to the trouble of obtaining poisoning and then putting it into the hands of the farmer without profit. They even advertised to the farmer where this material could be bought, though they made nothing in the transaction. All those things enter into the present fight and offer satisfactory conclusion that the agricultural interests here are on the road to a second victory. Ford says to the farmer that he must fight now, the farmer does not hesitate, he has gone to work, he will block the progress of the pest, he will again place Morgan county in the front rank of the state cotton standing where this county rightfully belongs.

BACHELOR CONTRIBUTES THE STRANGEST CASE ON RECORD.

In this state there is a man by the name of Clyde Reese Bachelor, a comparatively young man who has gained notoriety on the front pages of every publication in this state. He has rushed into sudden prominence, he has the distinction, you may say, of contributing the strangest case in Alabama's criminal record.

Yet there is something more than a criminal record to be looked upon in this sordid story of a misguided impulse. There is the love of the young wife, the daughter of the man who was declared to have been slain at the instigation of Bachelor. The Anniston Star contributes a beautiful editorial story telling in detail of the wife who would "love always."

The Star says:

There are many things about the recent slaying of Judge Lamar Smith that are remarkable. It is remarkable that the deadly shot should have been fired at the instigation of the man's son-in-law. It is remarkable that the slayer, reiterating that he is sane, should have plotted this crime for a period of months; that during that time he would have continued to visit the home of his would-be victim on terms of friendly intimacy; that his love of money, "the root of all evil," should have been strong enough to have caused him to bring this great sorrow into the lives of those he loved; and it is remarkable that a sane man would so readily confess to so dastardly a crime.

But possibly the most remarkable chapter in the tragedy was enacted when the wife of Clyde Reese Bachelor, the daughter of the man he had killed, sent to his cell a laconic message, saying: "I will love you always." Tormented for days by the heart tugs of conflicting loyalties, her mind almost destroyed under the impact of diverse griefs, the heart of the wife finally triumphs over the heart of the daughter; so she pens those elemental words with a hand that is shaken by emotion and sends them on to her lover in jail, "I will love you always."

That was enough; there need be no more. It was not necessary for her to say that she believed his story that he had killed her father in order to gain his money with which to gratify a desire to buy her pretty baubles. It was not necessary for her to tell him that while she loved the man he had killed and entertained a child's appreciation of the manifold sacrifices he had made in her behalf as a kindly father, yet she remembered more the oath she had taken at the altar to leave all other and cleave unto this one. It was not necessary for her to recount the ineffable sweetness of his caresses, the soft cadences of his voice when first he proclaimed his love, nor to recount the strength of his protecting hand when first she went down into the valley of shadows to bring into the world a child from his loins.

It was only necessary for the bereaved daughter to write the self-confessed slayer of her father, "I will love you always." He understood the full implication of the meaning of those few words, and as they were handed to him through the grated bars of his cell how gladly would he have melted into oblivion the lethal lead that had torn as great a hole in the heart of the woman he loved as in the head of the man he killed. How inadequate will be his life to pay as a penalty for the great wrong he has done this woman whom he loved so much that his folly dethroned his reason and his moral sense!

"Love suffereth long, and is kind," says Paul; and here we have the truism vindicated. "Nothing can be more touching," says Washington Irving, "than to behold a soft and tender female, who had been all weakness and dependence, and alive to every trivial roughness while treading the prosperous paths of life, suddenly rising by mental force to be the comforter and supporter of her husband under misfortune." Here we have conjugal love put to the ultimate test, and here we find it rising triumphant in resplendent beauty out of the sordid atmosphere of a patricial cell.

When you read a story like that unfolded above in that one short note, "I will love you always," there is no longer wonder in your mind as to why men will get up after they are down, why men will lead a losing cause to victory, why they will continue to sacrifice all welfare of being in an effort to please, to attract, to serve and to sacrifice for the woman who has given herself to him.

This girl loves the man who instigated the killing of her own father, another girl forsakes family and name, everything that she might go with the man she loves. A beautiful story of love and of sacrifice is told by all the way down the pathway of life, until the two souls, always as one, have entered the harbor of old age and are sailing toward the port of the sunset where life's gate swings to a close, where on the other side of the dividing gate those should migrate into another land, still serving, still loving.

Though it is difficult to see why that young girl should take such a step it isn't difficult when these devotions are all about us, when we come in contact with sacrifices day in and day out. Not on so large a scale perhaps, surely not upon the front pages of the newspapers, but there just the same. Were the stories of husband and wife written day in and day out a stranger story than that told by Mrs. Bachelor as she wrote "I will love you always" would perhaps be unfolded to the eye of the public.

Men do not fight for themselves, they are not of that nature. If it is not a wife, then it is a mother, if it is not a mother then there is a sister, or a sweetheart. Perhaps there is only a cherished ideal which may have been smashed, but continues to live forever in the soul of the male, he has not forgotten, he is being what he would like to have been with the woman of his choice, his ideal at his side. Mrs. Bachelor's story is pathetic, it serves to take some of the bitterness out of the terrible history of the single night when Clyde Bachelor contributed the strangest case on record to Alabama criminal annals.

When the bridge is finished, when the Moulton road is open, when the Courtland road is open, then should Albany-Decatur utilize the greatest efforts at encouraging rural trade and growth. Then weapons will be at hand to fight with, now is the time to make the ground sure by extending the hand of friendship to the farmer.

at Biaritz; one or two of them for aviators that run his flock of flying machines. The flying machines bring millionaires from other countries to talk with him. He has forty secretaries and a fleet of automobiles. His airplanes, including those rented from the Imperial Airways Company of London cost one hundred thousand dollars a week.

So goes the story, worthy of Jules Verne, but apparently that is the too-busy-too-much-cluttered-up type of millionaire. There is something wrong with a mind that needs so many secretaries, automobiles and flying machines.

WALL STREET has a young mysterious millionaire also.

DIGESTIVE TROUBLES MAY BREAK REST

Any Sluggishness of the System, Wrong Foods, Excessive Coffee or Tea Drinking and Daytime Naps May Upset Sleep Schedule.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
 Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the symptoms for which doctors frequently prescribe is inability to sleep. Fortunately most people are sensible and talk to the doctor before they begin any sort of home medication.

This is well, because the common prescription for sleeplessness is some sort of opiate. All opiates must be looked upon with suspicion. No layman has the right to prescribe for himself or for another a narcotic drug.

While drug addiction is very rarely traced to the careless use of opiates taken for their medicinal effects, nevertheless, there is a danger and no one can afford to face it. Addiction to a drug is a form of slavery almost impossible to overcome.

It is a common thing to regard sleeplessness as a symptom of worry. Of course it is, in many cases. It takes a lot of will-power to keep from worrying at night. Things look so black between midnight and three o'clock in the morning that to begin to worry at that time of night means that you will get no sleep until you are ready to get up. Then you find yourself fagged and sleepy.

Nine times out of ten sleeplessness is due to some form of indigestion. It is a common symptom of chronic constipation. The uncomfortable symptoms of indigestion and the stimulating quality of the poisons absorbed in constipation are likely to drive sleep from the pillow.

Whenever one of my friends talks to me about sleeplessness I immediately inquire regarding his digestive apparatus. Almost always I find that he is eating the wrong things or is a victim of constipation. A good many times the constipation exists when the victim believes he has no trouble of the sort.

Having a movement of the bowels every day is no proof of the absence of constipation. This may be the removal of waste material which should have been eliminated several days before. A certain sluggishness of the bowels has delayed the passage of the waste material along the intestine.

The best way to overcome sleeplessness due to this cause is to correct the constipation. This is best done by a proper selection of foods. As a means of temporary relief petroleum oil may be found useful. A tablespoonful taken each night before retiring or a half hour before breakfast may hasten the fecal stream and carry away the waste material which is capable of generating conditions producing sleeplessness.

Excessive tea or coffee drinking named Clarence Dillon. He took away the Dodge car financing from highly indignant, slow-moving Wall Street dinosaurs, then "grabbed" the National cash register, and lately has been financing bigger enterprises in Europe. His ways annoy old-fashioned Wall Street finance exceedingly. Wall Street reporters say he has no papers no pen and ink, only one or two sharp pencils and paper pad on his smooth glass-topped desk, near a comfortable arm chair beside an open fire-place.

That's the way to be an efficient, mysterious millionaire; get rid of detail.

A WELL-KNOWN young man who died recently was temperate, hard working, but believed, as others, that it is impolite to question the quantity of refreshments offered by friends.

His friends bought bootleg liquor made of alcohol poisoned by government order before being distributed. When they cut the young man open they found a hole in the lining of his stomach.

Americans that don't know it have such holes started.

THE government now plans a way of denaturing alcohol not so very poisonous. It will have only two per cent of wood alcohol, enough to kill if you drink steadily but not enough to kill after a few drinks. This new government denaturing process, it is said, "will discourage drinkers because it contains oils odorous and disagreeable."

WHOEVER thinks that offensive oils will stop the confirmed drunkard doesn't know him.

A man confined in a British work house cut off his hand with an axe, because he knew the doctors would give him whiskey which they did. Another broke open a glass jar containing a repulsive anatomical specimen preserved in alcohol and drank the alcohol.

SOME think it strange that government should allow wholesale distribution of poisoned alcohol, knowing that bootleggers will get, and thousands drink it.

Perhaps that is the only way to enforce prohibition. Also it may kill off all those that like alcohol and thus give us a purer race.

WALL STREET began its three-day holiday in a bath of optimism. Ordinarily stocks would be unloaded at such a time, "in case something should happen between Friday and Tuesday." Last Friday stocks were bought, prices put up, because "something might happen" to make it hard to get them on Tuesday. Seventeen railroad stocks touched new high marks in the day.

WALL STREET does not merely reflect opinions and hopes of speculators. It knows through the banks, the condition of business men all over the United States, whether they are making or losing. Don't ignore Wall Street wisdom except when it advises you to buy or sell on a margin. Don't gamble, and especially don't "go short."

Textile Plants In Good Shape

GASTONIA, N. C., Sept. 7.—A survey made today revealed that about 1,500,000 spindles in the Gaston county Spinners' Association have sufficient orders for yarns on their books to keep them in operation for an average of from six to eight weeks from the present date. Spinners are freely declining business offered near the price levels of the summer, textile men said.

LIMESTONE TO HAVE BIGGEST FAIR IN HISTORY

Limestone will have the biggest fair in its history this year on Sept. 29-Oct. 2, both inclusive, according to a statement made by J. B. Sarver, Secretary of the Limestone County Fair Association Monday afternoon. Over six thousand dollars have been spent this summer making needed improvements, and in addition to repairs on the grandstand and race horse stables an entirely new two-story floral hall has been erected. The general exhibit space has been enlarged on every hand, so as to give room to a much larger and more varied list of exhibits, a fact that has been seriously felt in past years. The race program will include any of past years, according to Mr. Sarver, as a large number of out-of-state horses are already entered, and a special horse show will close the program every evening.

The amusements will be furnished by the Sheesley Greater Shows which furnished the entertainment at the Birmingham State Fair last year, and the distance around the midway will be over a quarter of a mile. The Sheesley Shows are said to carry practically every riding device and form of entertainment known to showdom.

The free entertainments will consist of "Race Track Frolics" in three acts furnished by the World Amusement Association of Chicago; a number of others are being negotiated for and will probably be booked before the week is out.

The first day will be "Boosters Day," the second, "Homecoming Day," the third, "Children's Day," and the fourth, "Everybody's Day." The railroads as in the past are making special round trip rates to apply to Northern Alabama and Southern Tennessee points, as large crowds are always present from these points.

BOY SCOUTS TO PRESENT PLAY

Miss Linda Barrett of Atlanta has been very much engaged with rehearsals all this week on "Cupid Up To Date," a musical comedy to be presented at Athens College Auditorium Friday evening under the auspices of the Boy Scouts. The cast consists entirely of local people, and according to latest reports a great part of the house has already been sold.

EXTRA SESSION OF COURT LIKELY

GARNER-POINTER WEDDING

A beautiful event of Tuesday, September 7th, was the wedding of Miss Marjory Pointer to Mr. Elmer B. Garner, which was solemnized at 6:30 o'clock in the evening at the First Methodist church in Decatur. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The chancel, platform and choir rail were covered with white and entwined with Jackson vine and banded at the base with huge ferns. An archway of white under which the marriage vows were taken, was laden with many-colored specimen asters and these same variety of flowers in silver baskets tied with tulle of rainbow hues, were placed all along the chancel choir railing. In between these, silver candelabras held burning tapers.

Clyde Hendrix, Jr., Edwin Shackelford, Allison Drisdale, of Sheffield and Joe Nathan, of Sheffield, ushered to their seats, the hundreds of friends who witnessed the ceremony. The bridal chorus from the Rose Maid, was the first number on the musical program which preceded the marriage and this was sung by Mrs. H. R. Summer, Mrs. R. M. McLaughery, Miss Ruth Banks, Mrs. J. G. Hamilton and Messrs. N. R. Carroll, Rucker Mason, J. G. McGehee and Ingold Timberlake. Mrs. R. M. McLaughery's solo, "I Love You Truly," was given in her usual charming voice and was followed by "The Greatest Wish of All," sung by Mrs. H. R. Summer with much feeling. Mrs. W. E. Curry was the accompanist at the organ and she played Lohengrin's Wedding March when the bridal party entered and "Song of Love" during the ceremony.

Miss Eleanor Lanier, of Nashville, becomingly attired in orchid taffeta, went down the right aisle and was met by Edwin Shackelford, who came in on the left. They as did the other attendants, crossed and stood at either side of the altar. Miss Elizabeth Ann Morrow, striking in her dress of honey dew taffeta, entered on the left and was met by Allison Drisdale. Miss Eleanor Ramage, attractive in her costume of pink taffeta followed these with Clyde Hendrix, Jr., Miss Baby Bess Bailey, pretty in her green costume of taffeta, was next and she was joined by Joe Nathan. These bridesmaids' gowns in rainbow colors were made bouffant style with scarfs of tulle and their French bouquets added an effective touch. Miss Louie Moore Pointer, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and she was beautiful in a blue creation of taffeta and she also had a French bouquet. Little Miss Jane Malone, niece of bride, and Miss Mary Adele Cunningham, of Nashville, a niece of the groom, were the flower girls, and they were petite in pink chiffon trimmed in taffeta ruffles. The ring was carried in the heart of a lily by little Betty Foster Pointer, three year old sister of the bride, and she was daintily dressed in blue georgette over pink satin. The bride entered with her father, Mr. Foster H. Pointer. She is a beauty of the blonde type and was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin trimmed with satin flowers. Her veil, coronet style, was caught to her head with a wreath of orange blossoms and quite a bit of sentiment was attached to the latter as it had been worn by her mother. Her only ornament was a platinum and diamond bar pin, a wedding gift of the groom and she carried a bouquet of white roses showered with real orange blossoms. Ethridge Adams, the best man, escorted Mr. Garner to the altar where Dr. W. T. Tyler officiated, pronouncing the words that made them man and wife, using the ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Garner left for a trip to Atlanta, Ga., and Asheville, N. C. Her traveling costume was a black satin moire with which she wore black accessories. After September 15th they will be at home on Oak street.

Among the out-of-town guests who were here to attend the wedding were: Mrs. Garner, of Nashville, Tenn., mother of the groom; Mrs. Cunningham, of Nashville, sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. McCloud, Mrs. Hodson and Mrs. Spinelli, of Huntsville; Mrs. Lucy Ashford, Mrs. Byrd, Mrs. Hector Lane and Mrs. Dave Martin, of Courtland; Mrs. Sam Hall, of Tusculum, Ala.; Woody and Henry Bunn, of Laredo, Texas; Miss Annie Wheeler, of Wheeler; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Westmoreland and son, Bruce, Jr., of Athens; Mrs. W. R. McGregor, of Leighton; W. R. McGregor, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Krimble, of St. Louis, Mo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster H. Pointer and one of the Twin City's most attractive young women. The groom is auditor of the Tennessee Valley bank system and since coming here to make his home has won hundreds of friends who wish for the young couple the greatest happiness.

PARTY FOR OUT OF TOWN VISITORS

Mrs. John Hulbe, of Chicago, Mrs. Fred Sittason of Sheffield and Mrs. J. R. Armfield, of Birmingham, were prettily honored at bridge on Tuesday evening when Mrs. Ed Berry entertained for them at her home which was made more attractive with the use of nasturtiums and asters.

The three tables were arranged for the game and gathered around them were the three honorees, Mrs. Will Adams, Mrs. Roy Odum, Mrs. Sam Byars, of Chicago, Mrs. P. W. Newsom, Mrs. Edith McKnight, Misses Edie Hicks, Myrtle Patterson, Katherine Schneider and Louise and Hildegard Holtmann. Miss Louise Holtmann won the high score prize. Miss Hildegard Holtmann cut low for the consolation while Miss Hicks received the booby. Each of the guests were presented a gift. An ice course was served late in the evening.

ALBANY-DECATUR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

We wish to announce that this school is now in the hands of the one who first started it and that there are to be many changes. We wish everyone to understand that if they have a scholarship in this school, it is good under the new management.

Changes will be made in the teaching force so that all those who find fault now cannot find fault in the future. We are going to have a real school, regardless of all the criticisms of the past management. We predict that within a few weeks, nothing but good reports will go out from this school.

I invite any old student of the school to come to me with their complaint and let me do what I can to make things right. I want all my old students who were wrongfully dismissed from the school to come back, if possible. All who are capable of holding positions and haven't one, should get in touch with me.

We want the faith and good will of those who want business courses. We assure all that there will be no cause for complaint in the future.

DON JUAN

Copyright, 1926, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"Don Juan," screen play by Beza Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

Ah well—at least he had Adriana now. And he held her closer and called encouragingly to the great white horse that carried them on so swiftly.

It only he could reach the woods it would not be so difficult to do battle with those who followed. Juan's horse was beginning to slow down. The double burden and the speed to which Juan had urged him were proving too much. Juan urged him on again, called to him softly, beguilingly, as in the past, he had spoken to beautiful women—never had their favor meant to him what now efforts on the horse's part meant now.

It was a warm, sweet night, with rain in the wind that was coming before the dawn. In the east the sky was paling, with faint streaks of rose color reaching through the gray to finger the landscape. A night for love making, not for desperate adventure. A night meant for sitting in a rose garden, with music mingling with the murmuring of fountains, not for fleeing death.

"I think that I hear the sound of horses' hoofs," Adriana exclaimed, fearfully. Juan pressed her head closer against his shoulder.

"The sound of a branch falling. Woodcutters must be at work among his followers were expert swordsmen, chosen for their skill, but Juan fought as if he feared them not at all, rather as if he had planned the encounter merely to while away an idle hour. Even when he was hard pressed he did not give ground. Always he remembered that Adriana was hidden not far from where he fought. He must not let himself be forced back toward her and so endanger her safety.

He was wounded on one arm. The fine white fabric of his shirt was stained with blood. Laughing, he would have his adversary in a corresponding spot. The man lunged at him, rising in his stirrups. Juan ran him through, crying:

"Go—Join your master and Don Juan, the cousin of the woman who sent you to meet your death at my hands."

The man toppled from the saddle. He was the third to fall. Another had withdrawn to the rear, nursing his right arm, which had been pierced by Juan's blade.

The others hesitated. It seemed certain death to cross swords with this dark horse, laughing man, who fought like a demon.

"I like this not at all," one murmured, and one of his fellows replied in surly tones:

"We have done our best—the Borgia cannot ask more. We can tell her he killed those three and then got away through the brush."

And so suddenly they turned and urged their weary horses off down the road, the way they had come so confidently.

Juan waited a moment till they were out of sight. Then slowly he turned his horse's head and went back to the tree where he had hidden Adriana.

She saw him coming, stepped down to the ground and came to meet him with the dawn touching her hair and turning her gown to palest gold.

He bent down, lifted her into the saddle.

"They have gone," he told her, "but we must go as well. Italy can never again be safe for us. Will you give up your home for me?"

Her dark eyes were alight with love as she lifted them to his face.

"My home is in your heart," she answered. "I want no other."

He bent over her, held her so close that she seemed no separate being, but part of himself.

"We must go to Spain," he warned her. "A long journey, and until we reach the court where my father was known, and where some still remember me, we shall be vagabonds. You are delicate, unused to such traveling—shall I not leave you in some peasant's hut, where you would be safe until I could send for you?"

"Oh, Juan, never let me be separated from you again," she begged. "You are my life—no matter how you live, so must I live too."

And as dawn vanished the last of the night he turned his horse's head toward the first stretch of the long journey that would take them back to the grim castle where as a little child he had seen love and trust betrayed and received when the sound of the drum-like beating of the approaching forces grew disturbingly loud did he put her from him.

He had lifted her into the hollowed trunk of the tree and then waited for another brief kiss before running back to his own horse.

"I shall return, and soon!" he told her, and rode back along the way he had taken.

Adriana, half swooning, leaned back against the tree, trembling. If anything should happen to him life would end for her, she told herself.

Don Juan, the greatest lover in all Europe, had become a man numbed of spirit, contrite of heart, asking nothing but that he might be worthy of the love of the girl in his arms.

Sheriff Is Held After Shooting

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Sheriff Earl McWilliams, of Runnels county, is at liberty under $2,500 bond on a charge of murder filed in connection with the fatal shooting Saturday of Pleas Hill, 38, Concho county farmer, who had been arrested by McWilliams on a charge of theft.

McWilliams said he opened fire when Hill attempted to escape from the automobile in which he was taking him to jail. The sheriff also claims that Hill attacked him with rocks.

Tuck To Report September 13th

Floyd Tuck, former local high school grid star, and last year captain of Morgan school team at Petersburg, Tenn., will leave Monday to answer the call for candidates for the freshman team at Alabama. These candidates were requested to report to Coach Shorty Propst on September 12, one week after the reporting date of the varsity squad, which include Raymond Pepper, another local lad, and former teammate of Tuck.

SPORTS

Cards Moving Slowly Toward Flag As Pirates And Reds Falter In Race

Those aristocratic Cardinals are slowly steering past the last danger marks and sailing toward pennant harbor. Of course there is not clear water between that club and the home stretch at present, but there is lots to be said yet about the homing powers of the Reds and Pirates. Those teams look like they can be counted out, while the Cards are continuing to demonstrate to the Pirates that a champion ball club can be beaten.

The Cards are not home free by any means, but they have a good substantial lead at this time that will hardly be cut down without plenty of opposition on the part of the Card team. The Pirates now rest in third place four and one-half games behind the Cardinals. Cincinnati is stirring restlessly in second place two full games back of the leaders. The Cubs, hard to be counted upon are two and a half games back of the Pirates.

The Hornsby's blanked the champion Pirates yesterday with an 8-0 count, although the Bucs gathered nine hits off the delivery of Bill Sherdel. The Cards outbit the Pirates with 12 safe blows, driving Aldridge hard.

Cincinnati was pretty busy losing a game to the Cubs 8-5. Carl Mays hurled for the Reds and was accorded miserable support to allow many Cub runners to trickle across the pan.

The situation was unchanged in the American League, the Indians losing while the Yanks were idle. It looks as if the Yanks have the old pennant already flying at the Polo Grounds and are just casually watching the score boards and newspapers to see who won in the National, who they have to battle for the world championship.

Down in the Southern the Barons won a game, if that means anything. The Barons stopped Atlanta while New Orleans was idle. The Chicks handed a lusty wallop to Vol hopes and thereby stuck in second place by the same margin of three and one half games. The Pels seem to be slated to get the call to play the champions of the Texas League.

Pooley Hubert has joined Red Grange in singing "Any ice today lady." Really Red is not overlooking any bets in picking up a backfield that could score through a brick wall. Beside himself, Red has Hubert and Eddie Tryon, the Colgate flash, George Pease, the Columbus quarterback and Bullet Baker the lad from the western coast where he cavorted as a half back for the University of Southern California. Fry of Iowa has been chosen as the ball totter de luxe from the full back station. That's how solid Red is at the present time, how likely he is to start things going in a favorable way in the pro grid ranks.

Doug Wykoff has joined the Newark pro's and it is likely that Doug and Hubert will again face each other, though it is easily seen that Doug had much rather Hubert

GRANGE LOSS IS FELT BY ILLINI.

Veterans Wag Their Heads As Stiff Battle Looms

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO. — Without the services of the great Grange but with more than a dozen veterans on hand, Robert C. Zuppke, famed football coach of the University of Illinois, faces one of the stiffest gridiron schedules in Illini history. The schedule includes eight games and in the list are teams rated to be the toughest in the Big Ten conference.

Michigan, Chicago, Iowa and Ohio, conference battlers, Pennsylvania, one of the leading Eastern eleveners, defeated last year by Illinois, and Coe, Butler and Wabash, foremost among middle western smaller schools, will be the Illini opponents this season.

Coe, the only team on this year's list which did not play the Zuppke men last year, will open the season at Urbana, October 2. The following Saturday Butler will invade the Illini stadium, the conference games getting started October 16 with Iowa at the annual Illinois homecoming.

October 23 Zuppke will take his charges to Ann Arbor to meet Yost's University of Michigan team and October 30, climaxing a month of stiff play, Illinois will contest Pennsylvania at Urbana.

November 6 is the date of the Illinois-Chicago game to be played this year in Chicago. Wabash plays in Urbana November 13 and the following week Ohio will journey to Illinois' stadium for the season's windup.

Facing the prospect of whipping his eleven into shape extremely early in the season in order to be prepared for the tough October games, Zuppke has had made a $10,000 rubber blanket, called the "world's biggest raincoat" which will insure a dry field during September and October when rains and light snows may be expected.

Use of the raincoat is expected to furnish the Illini with a dry playing field during the days of practice and will also insure a fast gridiron for the playing of all games.

Over two billion smoked a month!

—natural tobacco taste has the "call" these days!

Men have certainly made their preference clear!

REMEMBER just a few years back you saw but few Chesterfields?

Mighty different today! You see them everywhere! But it's not that fact, but the reason, that's the interesting thing.

Natural tobacco taste—a taste secured by matching one fine variety against another, a taste which retains tobacco character—that's why Chesterfield is America's fastest-growing cigarette, and has been for four consecutive years. Not much doubt nowadays about what smokers want!
